UPDATE

Opening in November, West Park Hospital's Wound Care Clinic will offer education about chronic wounds and the treatments available at the Center. Chronic wounds affect approximately 6.7 million people in the United States. An aging population and increasing rates of diseases and conditions such as diabetes, obesity and the late effects of radiation therapy contribute to the chronic wound epidemic.

Leading edge treatments at our clinic will include negative pressure wound therapy, bio-engineered tissues, biosynthetic dressings and growth factor therapies. The Center also offers hyperbaric oxygen therapy, which works by exposing the patient to 100 percent oxygen to help support the healing process.

CODY PHILLIPS GETS TO PLAY FOOTBALL AGAIN

CODY'S STORY

Cody Phillips has played football for over seven years. He loves the adrenaline rush the game gives him. Since Cody was 5 years old, his parents have supported his love for the sport of football.

It was the first game of the season last year, where out of nowhere Cody felt a helmet collide with his back. A sharp pain went all the way up to his neck and he was soon told he had fractured his lumbar spine.

After researching where the best care would be provided, Cody Phillips and his family decided to stay here in Cody, Wyoming. "The neurosurgeon and staff here were willing to try a new procedure, and this procedure is what has allowed me to get back in the game," said Cody.
